Jason Bourne

Former Treadstone Operative | Independent Investigator

✉jason-bourne@example.com Location undisclosed

Field capabilities

Field judgment

Situational awareness, Pattern recognition, Improvisation, Multilingual communication

Investigative work

Identity reconstruction, Evidence trails, Surveillance awareness, Institutional accountability

Working preferences

Travel light, Verify the briefing, No return to Treadstone

Operational profile

David Webb. Known professionally as Jason Bourne. Former Treadstone operative who reconstructed his identity from a Zurich safe-deposit box, fragmented memories and a trail of people determined to erase both. Resourceful under pressure; skeptical of the briefing. Now uses the skills he was given to uncover the truth about the program that trained him.

Selected operations

Identity recovery Switzerland · France

Zurich → Paris The Bourne Identity

- Followed the Zurich bank trail to multiple passports, a Paris address and the Jason Bourne identity; investigated skills he could use but could not remember learning.
- Recognized the connection to Treadstone and confronted Conklin, choosing to leave the program rather than return to its chain of command.

Clearing a manufactured trail Germany · Russia

Berlin → Moscow The Bourne Supremacy

- Investigated the Berlin operation used to frame him and uncovered the connection between Ward Abbott, stolen CIA funds and an earlier assassination.
- Sought out Irena Neski to tell her the truth about her parents. Accepted responsibility where a clean escape would have been easier.

Treadstone / Blackbriar investigation

United Kingdom · Morocco · United States

London → Tangier → New York The Bourne Ultimatum

- Traced a journalist's source into Blackbriar while navigating surveillance and a widening pursuit across three cities.
- Recovered his original identity, David Webb, and confronted Dr. Albert Hirsch about his recruitment; passed Blackbriar records to Pamela Landy.